Performers highlighted as part of 46th annual Lanigan and District Music Festival

■ Daniel Bushman

With 250 entries, up from 231 in 2022, talent was on full display at the 46th annual Lanigan and District Music Festival. Held at the Christian Fellowship Church in Lanigan and spanning over two weeks (Apr. 19 to 21 and 24 to 27), the final concert occurred Thursday, Apr. 27, highlighting a number of performances from the festival.

Looking forward to the 2023 event, Amy Ewert with the Lanigan and District Music Festival said the adjudicator for vocal, musical theatre, and speech this year was Louella K. Friesen and the adjudicator for piano and strings was Sharon Rodney. Having both in attendance, Ewert said, “The adjudicators each offered a master class at the end of their festival week, both of which were a huge success! Students were given mini lessons where they were able to work on specific techniques in their music. The students (and teachers!) learned lots from both adjudicators!”

Featuring piano, voice and strings, talented performers from Lanigan and the surrounding area provided those in attendance with terrific pieces. On behalf of the festival committee, Ewert extended her appreciation to the students and teachers who entered this year’s festival, the adjudicators and those attending or watching the event virtually and to the volunteers, donors and sponsors. “Without all of these people the festival would not be able to go ahead. We are really appreciative of the support we receive each year to make the event the success that it is.”

As part of the annual event, Ewert highlighted the winners recommended by the adjudicators to continue competing following the final concert. “A big congratulations to District Festival winners Ryan Doromal, Jenevieve Melin, Geri Lon Valdesimo and Molly Evans who have been recommended by the adjudicators to compete in the SMFA Provincial Finals June 1 to 4.”

The following are the results of this year’s award and scholarship winners from the 46th annual music festival.

Grow Hope Saskatchewan provides emergency food assistance

■ media release

Saskatchewan urban and rural communities come together to support people around the world who need emergency food assistance under one banner – Grow Hope Saskatchewan.

As Grow Hope Saskatchewan launches its sixth growing season, Rick Block, Regional Representative with Canadian Foodgrains Bank, says the initiative invites urban and rural dwellers to learn about farming and the collective responsibility to be good stewards of our resources – but there is a global impact too.

“Funds raised through the grain-growing project are used to support people around the world who need emergency food assistance, as well as improving long-term food security,” Block said. “Grow Hope Saskatchewan is a tangible way for productive land in Saskatchewan to have a direct and positive impact for many around the world who do not have access to food, the ‘bounty that comes from the land,’” he said.

Michelle Hergott, a Grow Hope farmer near Bruno, Sask., says farmers have been gifted great abundance. Grow Hope Saskatchewan provides them an opportunity to share their passion.

“We are farmers and Grow Hope gives us the opportunity to help those in need while doing what we love to do,” she said. “Do you also feel a call within your heart to help this great organization to feed the world?” she asked.

Like Hergott, Block invites urban and rural people in Saskatchewan to help feed the world. “Folks are invited to sponsor an acre for $350, which can result in proceeds up to $500 from the sale of that crop. This in turn may be matched 4:1 through the Canadian Foodgrains Bank’s Partnership with Global Affairs Canada,” said Block.

Throughout the year Grow Hope Saskatchewan offers multiple opportunities for community engagement including a field day, recipes connected to the grains grown and artwork inspired by the landscapes of Grow Hope fields.

About Grow Hope Saskatchewan

- Funds raised through Grow Hope Saskatchewan support people around the world with emergency food rations and long-term food security.
- In 2022, Grow Hope Saskatchewan had a record-breaking year, raising $299,000 to end global hunger around the world.
- Grow Hope Saskatchewan has raised $748,000 for the Canadian Foodgrains Bank since its inception in 2017 with the first crop planted in 2018. Leveraging matching grants from Global Affairs Canada received at the highest rate, the total contribution would be about $3.74 million.
- At the launch of the 2023 growing season, there are 421 available donated acres to sponsor. Individual donations are welcome through the summer and there are several exciting opportunities for corporate sponsorship.

- It costs as much as $350 to sponsor an acre of land. This includes seed, fertilizer, fuel, and other inputs needed to grow a crop. Donors are able to sponsor partial acres, a full acre, or multiple acres.
- Grow Hope Saskatchewan started as a collaboration between Canadian Foodgrains Bank, MCC Saskatchewan, and the Roman Catholic Diocese of Saskatoon in the winter of 2017 to find creative ways to unite urban and rural communities in the effort to end global hunger.
- The 2023 Grow Hope Saskatchewan project is a partnership of: Anglican Diocese of Qu’Appelle, Primate’s World Relief & Development Fund, PWRDF, Synod of SK of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Presbyterian World Service & Development, Mennonite Central Committee of Saskatchewan, Roman Catholic Diocese of Saskatoon, Development & Peace Caritas Canada, and Canadian Baptist Ministries.

Saskatchewan RCMP received a report there was stolen property on a property in the Rural Municipality of Loon Lake Apr. 18. As a result of investigation, Saskatchewan RCMP's Meadow Lake Crime Reduction Team executed a search warrant at the property. Officers located and seized a green 2012 John Deere tractor, valued at an estimated $120,000, that had been reported as stolen from Chauvin, Alta. in 2020.

Loon Lake RCMP continues to investigate and asks anyone with information to report it to their local police service. Information can also be submitted anonymously by contacting Saskatchewan Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477) or www.saskcrimestoppers.com.

Approximately 50 bus passengers, many of whom were teenagers, were taken to hospital for treatment of injuries described as non-life-threatening. The semi driver did not report any injuries to police.

Hwy. 1 was closed during initial investigation. Indian Head RCMP continue to investigate. No charges have been laid.

Shortly after, Punnichy RCMP arrested an adult male on George Gordon First Nation in connection to the female's death. No additional public safety risk was identified.

Some people have started planting their gardens. After the cold spring we can hardly wait. Maybe the farmers can start seeding. I want to find pussy willows and wildflowers. I hope people do not dig up wildflowers. We need to keep our flora and fauna. Mother's Day service will be held May 14. Remember your mother even if she is no longer alive. Welcome to our new King of Canada and England. I remember the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. I was in grade seven. Happy birthday to Wendy Renwick, Dustin Kinzel, Heidi Craig, Joni Mack and Albert Cardinal.

Wow, the beautiful month of May is here and it is fantastic. We managed to get our yard work done, most of it anyway. It is like housework, it never ends, but it is a little better when you can be outside in the fresh air. I went over to pickleball at the school Tuesday evening. It is such a great time. At Viscount Central School the Gr. 4 students and the Kindergarten are weekly reading buddies. They enjoyed the Paper Bag Princess book last week. Way to go Elizabeth Udell who plays for the PA Northern Bears. Her team competed in the U18 Esso Cup. Elizabeth is originally from Viscount. Sounds like the games were very exciting. I believe it is also tick season. Please watch and check for them. I remember a time when it was a thing we never had to worry about. Now for myself anyway, I am always checking for them. Best wishes to anyone who is under the weather. I hope you feel better soon. Have a great week!

Solutions and Substitutions

drawback to this technique is that the coins may turn green if not dried well and the sparkle is short-lived. Brasso is a less risky option for cleaning coins. The least risky option is to use a rubber eraser to polish coins; however, this is quite a tedious process. After cleaning the coins, some people apply Turtle Wax to reduce tarnish, but take caution as this may look great, but lower the value of the coins. For silver spoons, place crumpled aluminum foil in a pan or plastic container. Dissolve one-quarter cup washing soda or salt in enough hot water to cover the spoons. Place spoons on foil and let stand for five minutes. Rinse and polish dry with a soft cloth. uncomplIcATed - Epilogue

by Arlene Martin

The following are excerpts selected from articles I've written and were published 2008-2010. It is my wish you will find them encouraging. 1. I measure my character by the size of the things that upset me. 2. We all grieve loss in our own way and time. 3. I would rather accidentally be scratched by claws than wounded by careless, callous comments. 4. Time diminishes who we once were. Telling our stories is validation that once we were little and loved and we were and still are treasured - by someone, somewhere. 5. The moment is all that fits into my hand at one time. 6. A heart that can lovingly and without restraint care for a helpless little furry creature, can wholly enfold and embrace a human being with equal or greater passion. 7. What's right for others isn't necessarily what's also right for me. 8. Life is to be cherished and cared for whether under a wrapping of hair, feathers, fins or fur. The cosmos sends a moment of silence and grieves each heartless loss. 9. Life is hard. And then you nap! 10. As sunrise ruptures outside my window, I ponder the people and my furry animals that radiate shimmers of light inside my heart. They are gifts that continually unwrap and unpredictably bring joy. 11. It is by walking through sorrow that I can truly appreciate the wonder of laughter and the dazzling blue of a summer sky. It heightens the awareness of what it means to grab a day and celebrate. 12. Prickly people are usually hiding a wounded heart. 13. Every new morning is Nature's way of telling me that people deserve a second chance. And a third. And so on. 14. I like to believe that all my friends are forever friends. Sometimes it doesn't work out that way and they fade from sight. But not without leaving incredible indelible footprints marking a special time. 15. Sunset is a great time to put my day to bed and anticipate an even better one tomorrow. 16. Life isn't about me. I am only the audience. 17. Stinging and sarcastic words do not reflect on who I am. 18. Whatever winter throws - spring is only resting and the green of new life exists. 19. I don't have to run in the fast lane to gain the approval of others. 20. A real good laugh is the best spa in the world. 21. Pet hair on the furniture is easier for me to live with than the thought of a pet in a cage awaiting a home or the final injection. 22. The honesty behind me saying "I'm sorry" is eye contact. 23. If I am smiling when I answer the phone I just know that others can see it. 24. Fear is a phantom that rambles the night, but faith is the sentry spreading sheltering light. 25. When the sky is the darkest, it is then it becomes illuminated and beautiful with vibrant countless glowing stars. I also feel the same about my friends, the real stars in my life. Love and courage - Arlene

Destiny Gibney, a woman of passion and determination

■ written by Sportcom for Judo Canada and reprinted with permission

For many years now, Destiny Gibney has made it her mission to promote and improve the status of women's judo in Saskatchewan. The former junior national champion has always put athletes at the centre of her priorities, in order to bring out the best in them.

As a young athlete, Gibney quickly decided to move into coaching, teaching her first classes at the age of fifteen. As the years went by, Destiny quietly drifted away from judo. However, she returned to her roots when her daughter Avery Gibney became interested in the sport her mother had practised.

"When I first started practising judo, I quickly realized that I wanted to coach. I later took a long break from the sport, until my daughter told me she wanted to try it. For me, it was only natural to start coaching again, so that I could share in the great moments she would experience," said Destiny.

Destiny now feels as passionate about judo as ever, and she hopes to be able to make a difference in the lives of all the young athletes that cross her path.

"I coach at a local club, as well as at the provincial level in Saskatchewan. And recently, Judo Canada generously offered me the chance to join the national team in a development capacity. I'm super motivated by each of these challenges," she said.

"I enjoy working with one athlete at a time and personalizing their development programs," she added. "I like to brainstorm with each athlete on how to best use their strengths, so that they can become the best judoka possible. I want to give them the opportunities they need to flourish."

For Gibney, being able to share in her daughter's special moments is an invaluable experience. She is happy to see how far her daughter has come, and claims that Avery is a much better athlete than she ever was.

"It's amazing to be a part of Avery's experiences on the tatamis. I think I've become an even better coach because of her. It's great to be able to follow her career so closely, and we have great chemistry. I'm very impressed with her and proud of her," said Gibney, with emotion.

A recent highlight for the mother-daughter duo was participating in the Canada Games, which took place in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, in early March. It was a homecoming of sorts for Destiny, who took part in the 1995 Canada Games in Grande Prairie, Alberta.

"I was really looking forward to making my Canada Games comeback! All joking aside, it was a great experience, not only for Avery, but for the entire Saskatchewan team. It was my first time coaching a team competition. Something new to add to my CV!" added Gibney.

Upon her return from the Canada Games, there was no time to rest for Gibney. She immediately began preparing for an all-women's competition in Thuringia, Germany. It was another unforgettable experience for her.

"It was a bit surreal to be an assistant coach in Thuringia, because I never competed at such a high level myself. At this point, I think I'm learning as much from the athletes as they're learning from me. Promoting female coaches is a great Judo Canada initiative, and I'm grateful to be a part of it."

In Thuringia, Gibney realized that her mission to promote women's judo is indeed the right one for her. The coach from Saskatchewan plans to continue to work hard to help young girls understand that anything is possible.

"When they see women succeed, they understand that they can, too. I don't necessarily think that all female athletes need female coaches, but having a female role model is really important. I will always support women's judo in Canada. My mission won't change. I want [girls] to know that judo is a very realistic option for them," she concluded.

**Destiny (Diehl) Gibney is originally from Watrous and competed with the local judo club, earning a number of accolades during that time.*

RNs answer the call to care.

By protecting the public through regulatory excellence, our "call to care" signifies the CRNS's commitment to registered nursing in Saskatchewan and our legislated mandate to act in the best interest of the public.

Happy National Nursing Week!

Thank You to Nurses Across Saskatchewan

National Nursing Week is an opportunity to celebrate the many contributions nurses make across our health care system. Every day, nurses deliver high quality care and are making a difference to Saskatchewan patients.

The Government of Saskatchewan recognizes the unwavering dedication and commitment of nearly 18,000 nurses working across the province on the front lines of health care.

Saskatchewan is fortunate to have highly trained, compassionate, and dedicated nurses in our province. We are grateful for our registered nurses, registered psychiatric nurses, licensed practical nurses and nurse practitioners. Thank you for the difference you make in the lives of your patients and in your communities.

We have heard the call for additional staffing and resources to meet patient care needs. Building capacity within our health care system, and strengthening our current and future health care workforce are top priorities for the provincial government.

Saskatchewan's Health Human Resources Action Plan outlines our plans to recruit, train, incentivize, and retain health care providers. Learn more at saskatchewan.ca/hhr respond in an emergency. Many team members are volunteers with their local fire departments.”

First coming into existence in 1984, the annual competition has members of the Lanigan Division emergency response group divided into teams, creating a balance between wisdom gained through years of experience and the eagerness of newer recruits. The day is also aimed to stimulate participants to train intensively in the use of respiratory protective equipment, emergency tools and first aid procedures. It also acts as an opportunity to evaluate and compare the effectiveness and quality of the emergency response program at the mine.
