Clarke continues to blaze trail on and off the ice

■ Daniel Bushman

It is only the beginning for official Alex Clarke who has been making history, achieving her dreams and inspiring others. Earlier this fall, Clarke (nee Blair) who grew up on a farm near Drake, became the first woman ever to ref a Canadian Hockey League game before being named to both the Western Hockey League and American Hockey League's officiating teams for the 2021-'22 season.

"I think the theme has been grateful more than anything," said the 28-year-old, admitting the past month has been a bit overwhelming. "I think more than anything though I am just excited to see the opportunities come and to hopefully give them my best foot forward."

Like other hockey officials aspiring to call games at the highest possible level, the path for Clarke has not been an easy one. Up until a month ago, no woman had ever officiated in the American Hockey League, let alone the Western Hockey League. Fast forward to the latter part of October and that feat was accomplished in part by Clarke. Not only that, but the potential to see female officials one day in the NHL has also now become a real possibility.

Named to this year's WHL officiating team in September and joining nine other female referees and linespeople as part of the 2021-'22 AHL crew, Clarke said, "For me it is rewarding to feel like I've earned it. There are a lot of people right now who think in the WHL I am just a token female or in the AHL that think that the 10 of us are just token females. I think it is rewarding to be able to feel and stand on my feet and say that I think that I've earned this opportunity and I don't think that it is coming to me as a gender thing. I feel like they've recognized and seen me and I am qualified to be there."

Over the years Clarke has certainly put in the work and time refining her craft. Residing in Weyburn, the official has been a part of a number of high level international events including being assigned to the 2020

IIHF Women's World Championship, the 2019 IIHF Women's World Championship (Division 1, Group B), the 2018 4 Nations Cup, and the 2018 IIHF U18 Women's World Championship (Division II, Group B). In addition, she has skated in nearly 300 games in Saskatchewan since the 2017-'18 season, including: in the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League; the Saskatchewan Female U18 AAA League; U SPORTS Women's Hockey; the Saskatchewan Male U18 AAA League; and the Prairie Junior Hockey League.

"It has been amazing how many people have been supportive and who have stood behind me but for me it is just really rewarding to have the confidence in myself to know that they've picked me because I am qualified and not for any other reasons."

"For the past several years we have been monitoring Alex's development and progression as an official," said Kevin Muench, WHL Senior Director, Officiating. "She has been highly successful in Junior A and her recent performance at the IIHF Women's World Championship was highlighted by her assignment to the bronze medal game. She has proven she is ready to take the next step in her career by earning the opportunity to be on the ice in the WHL."

That historic opportunity arrived on Sept. 24, when Clarke was part of the officiating crew during a WHL pre-season contest between the Moose Jaw Warriors and Regina Pats. Becoming the first woman in Canadian Hockey League history to officiate in a WHL game, leading up to the contest, Clarke said there were some nerves but also a lot of excitement. "I was very focused on going out there and putting my best foot forward. I got a little bit more nervous that morning after the press release went out and people were more aware of what was going on."

Making the drive from her home in Weyburn to the rink in Moose Jaw, once she arrived and got her gear on, the realization of what was transpiring slowly started to sink in. Grabbing her whistle and taking a walk from her dressing room to the playing surface, once her skates touched the ice, it was all about the moment. "I tried to take in as much of it as possible because it was really a historical moment. I recognize the significance of it but it maybe doesn't feel as significant for me because I feel like it is only the start of something. I know that there is so many more women who are going to be there right with me or right behind me that that singular game only feels like the beginning. I am more excited about the opportunities that are to come for both myself and other women that I don't know if I fully recognized how significant that singular moment was."

Since that historic game Sept. 24, Clarke was tasked with officiating four regular season WHL contests by the time October was over. Anticipating November's schedule, she is eager for more assignments so she can gain valuable experience. "The first part of the season they guarantee me six to eight games to get out there and prove myself essentially. It is a performance-based industry and a performance-based league so beyond that, every assignment is earned. It will all depend on my performance and how I am doing."

As the memorable WHL campaign kicked

After officiating hockey in Drake during her minor hockey days to becoming the first woman in Canadian Hockey League history to officiate a game in the Western Hockey League (pictured), Alex Clarke has been paving the way for female linespeople. Clarke was also recently added to the American Hockey League staff joining nine other female referees and linespeople as part of the 2021-'22 season.

off for Clarke and the rest of the league in late September, heading into the Thanksgiving weekend, the AHL announced the official with local roots would also be part of its roster. Added to the AHL staff as a linesperson, Clarke joined nine other female referees and linespeople as part of the historic 2021-'22 season.

"We are honoured to be able to play a role as these officials continue their development (see page two: CLARKE) towards working at the sport’s highest level,” said American Hockey League President and Chief Executive Officer Scott Howson. “They each bring years of experience in the collegiate, junior, international and women’s professional ranks, and they will all be great additions to our staff this season.”

While the puck has already dropped on the AHL campaign, with a full-time job at Farm Credit Canada, officiating in the WHL, and being a wife and mom, Clarke said scheduling has not quite allowed for her to step on the ice at the AHL level quite yet. “I am hoping maybe the end of November I will get an opportunity but I am really excited for the ladies that are having games this month. I am excited for them because they are the firsts in that league and I am over the moon to see anybody get that opportunity, not just me.”

Keeping an eye on the first AHL game ever officiated by a female referee between the Lehigh Valley at Wilkes-Barre/Scranton, on Oct. 16 a smile came across Clarke’s face as another barrier for female officials was broken. “I am excited for my own development purposes but I am also just so excited for what it means for female opportunities in general. I think that the more women can see females at high levels on either the male or female side, the more that they see opportunity for themselves.”

Those opportunities also extend to Clarke’s young daughter who one day will see the significance of her mom achieving her dreams while inspiring others. “I am excited for when she can understand. I got asked whether she likes watching me and my response was, I just think she likes the snacks when she comes to the rink,” said Alex laughing. “I am really excited for the day when she can maybe look back and see what I did and why I did it and be proud of what I was able to do.”

Perhaps by then the door will have been opened wide enough that females officiating NHL games will be a regular occurrence. In an article on NHL.com by Amalie Benjamin, NHL Director of Officiating Stephen Walkom said having Clarke and the other nine women named as part of the AHL’s staff paves the way for them to have a chance at officiating at the NHL level.

“I’ve said before we’re going to see a day when we see women working professional hockey, and that day is coming real quick,” said Walkom. “One day, we will see women in the NHL. It’s just a matter of time.”

Up until a few weeks ago, officiating in the NHL was never really a thought for Clarke. Now that the possibility is more of a reality, it has given her something to think about. “I’ve never thought about it enough to decide if I would be interested whether the opportunity came about. But to think we are now at an opportunity where myself and other female officials can at least see that as a reachable goal, that is the most exciting part for me. It is that they don’t have to limit where that dream ends because we are continuing to extend what we are capable of.”

Until the day when female officials can be part of the NHL arrives, Clarke has more than enough to keep her busy. “It has been a very intricate balancing act. I am probably busier than I have ever been right now over the past month. It is starting to get into the busier season for work and we just wrapped up harvest. My husband farms on top of his full-time job so it is a balancing act and every spare second counts. But I enjoy that and I think we just make the most of the moments that we have.”

Part of her hectic schedule as of late has also included speaking with a variety of media outlets from across the country. Once news broke that Clarke would be making history as part of the WHL and AHL, the phone started ringing.

“I feel like my name and my face is everywhere and as amazing as that is, I keep joking to my husband that I am sick of my face,” she said laughing. “But I am just really excited about people seeing it because in order for people to realize that it is an opportunity they have to know that somebody out there is doing it and it exists as a realistic opportunity for them. That is the biggest thing.”

However, since the announcements were made that Clarke would be part of both hockey leagues, she acknowledged it has been a bit tough seeing some negative comments about the situation. Doing her best to brush the negativity aside, she explained the remarks have also added fuel to the fire to prove herself. “I can show that I am truly capable and not a token hire. I know that none of the females that got hired in the AHL are hired based on their gender, they are all hired based on their capability and I think we are all just excited to get out there and show that because I think the world is really missing out on how qualified we really are.”

Despite some negativity from skeptics of having female officials in the WHL and AHL, Clarke was quick to acknowledge that there has also been tremendous support from across the country including from her hometown of Drake. “The support has been amazing. As soon as the news hit, Mom and Dad said their phones would not stop ringing. It has been cool to see the support from people, even ones who I haven’t been in contact with for a long time and people who I don’t realize are supporting me. It is just really cool to see how many people are proud of me and to see how many people are cheering me on when I am used to being the bad guy on the ice and getting yelled at.”

Growing up on a farm southeast of Drake and competing at the Drake Sportsplex, while Alex’s first love was playing hockey, she would later realize that officiating would become her true calling. “When I started refing in Drake I was 11 or 12-years-old and it was just because we didn’t have any refs and I played hockey. There is not really many opportunities for part-time jobs in Drake as a 12-year-old kid so it was an opportunity to make some money and we needed refs. It was also an opportunity to get on the ice and skate really.”

Developing as both a player and official along with gaining a better understanding of the game, Clarke admits that never in her wildest dreams did she think she would one day become a ref and pursue a dream as an official. “It was always player first.”

It wasn’t until Clarke ended her playing career due to injury after competing at the College of St. Scholastica in Duluth, Minn. and being drafted by the Calgary Inferno of the Canadian Women’s Hockey League (CWHL) that she really saw the opportunity on the officiating side. “I think it all kind of shapes how I got here and even just my experience as a player and on the ice in general as a kid. If you can overcome as a 12-year-old getting yelled at by fans and coaches, if you can overcome that as a 12-year-old, I think that you are much more equipped as a 28-year-old to overcome that as well.”

Since those early days of calling games in Drake, as Clarke’s dream of officiating at a high level like the WHL and AHL is being realized years later, she has also set her sights on the global stage.

Having been assigned to the IIHF Women’s World Championship in Calgary, Alta. earlier this year and with a goal of one day officiating at the Olympics, at the beginning of November Clarke is headed to Denmark and the Czech Republic to compete for an Olympic roster spot.

Making cuts similar to hockey players trying out for a team, Clarke will take part in an officiating camp in Denmark before being split up into one of three groups. From there, all of those who make the list will ref the qualification tournament to determine the final three teams going to the Olympics. Clarke said by the time she gets back to Canada later in November, she will find out if she made the cut.

“That will be the next thing in a lot of opportunities right now, which is amazing,” said an excited Clarke who continues to achieve her dreams and inspire others while rewriting history.

Lazers secure ticket to provincial play with a win

■ submitted by Ryan Wilson
Lazers head coach

The Lanigan Lazers senior football team finished off the season with back-to-back games against the Viscount Vikings on Oct. 7 and 20. The first game of the two was held in Lanigan, and was the last league game of the regular season schedule. The second game was to determine which team would qualify for the 2A provincial tournament.

In the first game the Lazers quickly fell behind the Vikings, with Viscount quarterback Dexter Gusikoski single-handedly accounting for 14 points on two touchdowns, as well as a two point (kicked) conversion following the second. Late in the quarter Lanigan tailback Carson Kulchyski put up his first major of the night with Copeland Balion adding two points after touchdown (PAT). At the end of the first, Viscount led 14-8.

In the second quarter Gusikoski added 10 more points himself and threw to receiver Tanner Lowe for another six, while Kulchyski added two more touchdowns for the Lazers, and Balion kicked another two point conversion. At the half the score was 30-25 for Viscount.

The Vikings' defence dialed in during the third quarter keeping Lanigan off the score sheet while Gusikoski continued to tear up the field and kick converts for another 10 points. He also added a throw to receiver Kalan Lang and Viscount expanded the lead to 46-25 going into the final quarter.

The Lazers offence found its stride again in the fourth quarter with Balion scoring 10 points (six on the ground and four from his toe) while slotback Carson Jones and tailback Ethan Paupst (who replaced Kulchyski after a lower body injury) added six more each. Gusikoski responded with eight more points for Viscount and threw another touchdown to Kasen Brochu for a final score in favour of the Vikings, 60-47. Each team finished the season with a record of 2-2, but the Vikings earned the right to host the provincial qualifier game in Viscount.

The provincial qualifier was something of a mirror image of the regular season game with the Lazers this time the visiting squad, but jumping out to an early 14 point lead and the home team Vikings scrambling to catch up. The Lazers owned time of possession throughout the game using the running game to great effect on the strength of running backs Kavaia Masilago and Jace Wildeman. At quarterback, Balion had another strong outing, using his legs to move the ball, but also connecting with his receivers when needed.

The Lazers defence seemed better prepared for the game of Gusikoski, and though not able to shut down his evasiveness, they were able to force him to run longer distances for shorter gains. Though both offences had a few turnovers, the Lazers came on fumbles early in the first half, while the Vikings were forced to throw more often in the second half leading to a few interceptions at key moments. In addition to leading in touchdowns, the Lazers' Balion kicked a field goal in the second quarter and at the end of the first half the Lazers retained their lead, 33-24.

That was the closest the Vikings would come in the second half of the game as the Lazers continued to use the run game to grind down both the Vikings defence and the time clock in the third quarter. This time it was the Vikings who were kept off the sheet with the third quarter ending in a score of 57-24 for the Lazers. The Lazers added one more major and added a two point conversion while Viscount scored twice more, once each on their final two possessions to bring the game to a 65-40 final score in favour of Lanigan.

Congratulations to the Lanigan Lazers who secured their ticket to the 2A provincials, their first trip to the quarter finals in three years! The team was looking forward to their scheduled trip to Wakaw Oct. 30.

Viscount Archery Club hosted a 3D Fun Shoot Saturday, Oct. 23 (pictured). Twenty archers of all ages came to challenge themselves to two rounds of 20 3D targets. A good time was had by all!

The junior boys volleyball team competed in LeRoy and won first place.

The Viscount Vikings football team lost to Lanigan Lazars Oct. 15. It was a breezy and cool day but I hear the game was enjoyable.

Four ladies met at the library Wednesday, Oct. 20 to work on blankets. We have plenty of work ahead of us as we have been given squares and yarn. Blankets for Canada has switched to meeting on Wednesdays. We delivered 30 blankets this past week to shelters in the city. They are always in need and greatly appreciated.

Book Club has started up again. Our first book is The Other Boleyn Girl by Philippa Gregory. This 600 plus page book is a real page-turner!

Best wishes to anyone who is under the weather. I hope you feel better soon. Thank you to all who helped make this week's Viscount news possible. Have a great week, stay warm and stay safe.

Pancake Mix

Ingredients:

- 6 cups flour
- 1 tbsp. salt
- 6 tbsp. baking powder
- 6 tbsp. sugar
- 2 cups powdered milk

I use a variety of flour, whole wheat, rye, oatmeal flour and ground flax seed. Half of the flour should be white flour. I like this recipe as it stores in the cupboard and has no fats to go rancid.

Directions:

To make pancakes, combine in a bowl
1 egg, beat lightly with a fork
1 cup water
2 tbsp. oil
1 1/2 cups pancake mix
Fry on a hot ungreased non-stick pan. I usually sprinkle the pancakes with blueberries or any other berries (if using frozen blueberries or saskatoons, do not thaw). I sprinkle them with chopped walnuts or pecans as well.

Mandatory Masks Indoors and Proof of Vaccination

We need your help to keep Saskatchewan safe. Remember the rules and be kind to those doing their jobs to support the public health measures.

The public health order for province-wide mandatory masking in all indoor public spaces, including schools, has been extended until November 30. This is in addition to the proof of COVID-19 vaccination or a negative test required to access a range of businesses, event venues, as well as for specific employees as outlined by their employers.

The fastest and easiest way to get your proof of vaccine is by setting up a MySaskHealthRecord account from eHealth Saskatchewan.

Get vaccinated – arm yourself with the best defence against serious illness, hospitalization and death.
