Oilers hire Imperial's Kris Knoblauch as head coach

■ Daniel Bushman

Finding success everywhere he has coached and with a team looking to turn its season around, Imperial's Kris Knoblauch has been hired as the head coach of the National Hockey League's Edmonton Oilers.

Coaching the New York Rangers' American Hockey League affiliate in Hartford over the past four seasons, this will be Knoblauch's first full-time head coaching role at the NHL level.

"It has been a crazy 24 hours for myself," shared Knoblauch during a media conference in Edmonton Sunday, Nov. 12. "I was on the bench yesterday in Hartford, then on a plane to get here and now here to be able to coach the Edmonton Oilers with such a strong hockey culture, history and passionate fans. To be here as a head coach is a little bit of a dream for me."

Taking over from Jay Woodcroft, who was let go by the organization following a 3-9-1 start to the year, including a loss to last place San Jose, Knoblauch inherits a team that has qualified for the playoffs in each of the past two seasons but has struggled to open the 2023-24 campaign.

With an underwhelming start to the year, Edmonton General Manager Ken Holland said the team kept hoping they would win but following the recent loss to San Jose, a decision was made and Knoblauch was brought in.

Citing Kris as one of the brightest young coaches in the NHL, Holland shared when he was the general manager of Detroit in 2015 that Knoblauch was one of the finalists for the head coaching job for the Red Wings' AHL team. While Holland ended up hiring more of a veteran coach, he had been following Knoblauch's career from afar ever since. "He has won everywhere he has gone."

That recipe for success stemmed right from junior hockey as Knoblauch helped guide the Kootenay Ice to a title in the Western Hockey League and a berth to the Memorial Cup. Then with the Erie Otters of the Ontario Hockey League, Knoblauch achieved four consecutive 50 win seasons, an OHL championship, was named coach of the year and advanced to the Memorial Cup. He also helped behind the bench with Team Canada at the IIHF World Junior Championship and became an assistant coach with the NHL's Philadelphia Flyers for two seasons.

After his time in Philadelphia, Knoblauch took on the role as the head coach of the American Hockey League's Hartford Wolf Pack and during his tenure with the Wolf Pack, Kris attended the AHL All-Star game one year as a head coach and briefly served as the New York Rangers head coach on an interim basis.

Accumulating those experiences, when he got the call to be the head coach of the Oilers, Knoblauch shared it was an unbelievable opportunity and extended his appreciation to the Rangers for allowing him to go out and take on the job.

With ties to Edmonton and playing as a winger with the University of Alberta Golden Bears before starting his coaching career in 2006-07 with the Prince Albert Raiders, when asked who were some of the people who helped him get to where he is today, Knoblauch became emotional as his wife and two kids remained back in Hartford. Sharing how grateful he is of their support, coaching wise, the 45-year-old said, "Rob Daum at the U of A had a big influence on me. My time in Philadelphia, Hack (Dave Hakstol) was huge but also starting coaching in the Western League, when I was in Prince Albert, Peter Anholt and Mark Holick, when I went to Kootenay. I was an assistant coach, knew nothing, very little. I had a very strong work ethic and would spend hours in there. I would have ideas of what I needed to do and I don't think once they ever said, 'No let's not do that.' They are like, 'Yeah that's a good idea, let's go do it. You tell the players.' If I didn't have the support and belief in those two guys it would have been different and I appreciate that."

Learning a lot of lessons along the way, Knoblauch said, "I think the most important thing is your players just have to feel good about themselves to perform. Right now I see some guys who are beaten up, they are frustrated and have put so much pressure on themselves to perform and it has not been healthy for them."

Wanting to reach out and connect with his new coaching staff and the players, Knoblauch said, "Ultimately I see a very talented team underperforming, that is why I am here. Ultimately I am trying to build something and have some success that was anticipated at the beginning of the year."

Explaining it can be almost like a reset when a new head coach is brought in, Knoblauch hopes that the players will see that and the pressure will be alleviated. One of those players is captain Connor McDavid who was coached by Knoblauch in Erie during his junior days. "The fact that I got to coach him in Erie, I feel very fortunate to have that opportunity. Now to be able to do that twice, I am pretty lucky there."

McDavid's agent during his time in Erie was Jeff Jackson. Now the CEO of Hockey Operations for the Oilers, Jackson got to know Knoblauch and with a number

Comedy takes centre stage

■ Daniel Bushman

Loaded with laughs, local faces and the opportunity to provide residents of Watrous and the area a chance to enjoy an evening out, this year's Watrous and Area Arts Council dinner theatre features the production: The Inseparables. With members of the Saltwater Players taking centre stage, the event runs Nov. 24 and 25 at the Watrous Civic Centre.

Looking forward to the upcoming performance, spokesperson for the Saltwater Players Amanda Dezotell said it is fun to be back after having to pause for a few years due to covid restrictions. "Last year we were back after a break and had some new people join us. This year we return with some familiar faces and new ones as well."

Joining director Rosemary Pilkington and prompter Shannon Craig, the familiar cast for 2023 includes: Carol McIntosh, Nancy Holma, Avery Andreas, Jo-Ann Borsa, Allison de Huber, Terry Potts and Krystal Klenk-Potts. New to the group in 2023 are Stephan Worobec and Fran Potts.

"It is so much fun having local people be a part of the production. When I joined we had a bunch of people with different age ranges so it is an opportunity to bond with those who you may not normally cross paths with otherwise. To have such a diverse group of people from our area is just awesome."

Rehearsing for the past six weeks, the crew both working on the set and performing have been gearing up for the production. "The Inseparables is a comedy, which seems to go well for us. It is a play within a play so it is actually a play about a community theatre group wanting to put on a play and not sure they can pull it off in time for the big performance."

A similar type of production has been done in the past and Dezotell said it can be exciting but challenging. "Each actor is essentially playing two parts, their character in the play but that character has to be a character. So it is almost double duty, you are wearing at least two hats in each scene and that all adds to the fun."

Sharing the production will be a great time for those in attendance, Dezotell said, "Come and have some laughs. It is going to be light, it is fun and it is hilarious. Over the years we have really appreciated the community support and are looking forward to filling the Watrous Civic Centre again this year."

Isn't it frustrating when you are telling the truth and you are not believed?

Most missed the advent of the Messiah because Jesus was born and raised in humble circumstances. He did not come as the conquering King they expected. Even when Jesus rose from the dead as he had promised, and appeared to his disciples, Thomas said, "Unless I can put my finger in the holes in his hands and put my hand in his side, I won't believe it." Jesus showed up and responded; "Blessed are those who have not seen and believed."

Jesus calls out to the crowd, and to us: "Come unto me all who are thirsty..." The risen God invites us to a faith response, to trust in Him for redemption. Many chose not to believe because they think it can't be true, this doesn't fit their expectations.

I invite you to reconsider the call of Jesus Christ in your life. If you find it hard to believe because of something people have done in the name of religion, or a poor view of the church, don't let that influence the claims of Jesus. The call is not a prank or bogus call, it's truthful and worth your follow-up.

of other clients on that team in junior, the CEO explained he was very close to the club. Witnessing what Knoblauch could do with teams and understanding he has a very good feel for the players, Jackson shared those were big factors as to why the Oilers organization decided to go with Kris as its next head coach.

By adding Knoblauch as head coach and special advisor to the team Paul Coffey as an assistant to replace Dave Manson, the Oilers are hoping to see their losing ways reversed and their goals allowed per game reduced.

Describing he has observed a team that is trying very hard, is very passionate, wants to win and wants to do what is right, Knoblauch added the NHL is a very difficult league and when players get frustrated and down, it is tough to perform at the highest level.

"My time as a head coach and certainly my time in Erie, I was fortunate to have some really good offensive players . . . we were always first or second in goals against average. I try and empower my players to commit to playing defensive without having to sacrifice any offence. That is certainly a message I am going to try and instill in our team."

Heading into his first game behind the bench against the New York Islanders, a team that drafted him in 1997, Knoblauch wanted to make things as simple as possible. Despite the Islanders scoring in the opening minute, the Oilers settled in and with a four point night from Leon Draisaitl, Edmonton collected a 4-1 victory and Knoblauch's first win as the head coach.

Speaking to the media following the game, Knoblauch said, "It feels amazing. To get that first win being a head coach was a highlight and just being here. Obviously it gets much better when you win."

After the game, the coach was presented with a game puck commemorating his first NHL win as a head coach for Edmonton. "It felt incredible. It is going to be a souvenir. I had a game puck on my desk before the game started and I was like, 'Oh I have only got one and I have two kids.' Then we won and now I have two so we can make everyone happy and maybe I won't tell them which one is the game puck and which one is the souvenir puck. After the game, they did something really special. They had a video on the TV and presented the puck and had my wife on the TV saying a few words and that was very nice of them to do."

Enjoying the warm weather south of the border, Bob and Holly Knoblauch knew it was only a matter of time before their son would receive a head coaching job at the National Hockey League level. What the pair did not expect was that it would be Edmonton and it would come in November.

"It was Sunday morning and we were just leaving the house and I got a text from a friend back home," Bob shared from Arizona. "He asked if Kris was headed to Edmonton. I said, 'No. I hear these rumours all of the time, it must be a wild rumour."

Planning on doing some shopping, getting about two miles down the road, Bob explained his phone began blowing up with messages that his son had in fact been hired by the Oilers. "It was a total shock and we weren't expecting it that's for sure. I know he was excited. We were probably just as excited or more because we know how hard he worked for it and the time he put into it. It was just a goal of his to keep climbing up the ladder and it was such a proud moment when he finally made it."

Having cheered for the Oilers since McDavid joined the team, Bob knows a few of the current players who suited up for Kris during his tenure in Erie. Knoblauch said the previous connection with McDavid, Warren Foegele and Connor Brown, Kris' captain in Erie, will be a benefit. "All great kids and it was good to see he knew some familiar faces and knows what they can bring to the table. It was good to see that he got some of his old junior players. I know they enjoy playing for him."

Explaining that his son first became interested in coaching when he played at the U of A for five years under Rob Daum, Bob said the calm demeanour and a focus on building relationships with players are assets his son brings with him to Edmonton. That was already evident during the first day on the job as Knoblauch tried to spend time with each player during a morning skate.

"Everybody that has played for him or anything to do with him, that is the way he coaches. His office door is always open. When he first started coaching in

Erie, the coaches office was in the back corner where nobody could really see the coach.

The first thing Kris did was he moved the office right to the front door where all the players walked in so he could say hi in the morning and when they left, goodbye. The door was always open. I think the players always know that he is available to talk to and I think that really helps his relationship with the players."

Excited for their son to take on the head coaching duties in Edmonton, Bob and Holly headed to a friend's house to catch that first game between the Oilers and Islanders.

"We would not have missed that."

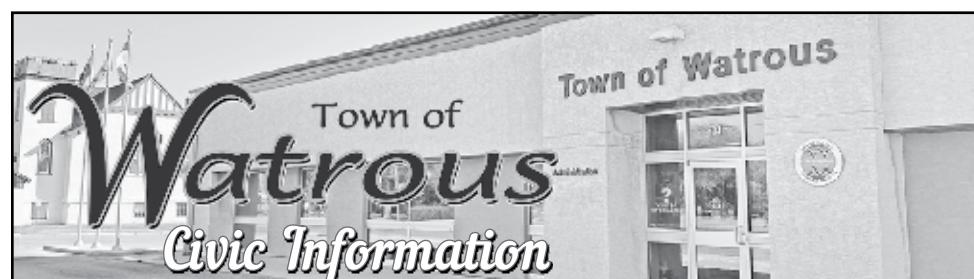

While Bob said it was a little nerve-wracking at the start when New York opened the scoring, once the Oilers settled into the Nov. 13 contest and skated away with a 4-1 victory, the proud dad said it was great to see his son get that first win.

Planning to head to Edmonton in early December to take in a few games and watch their son behind the bench, Bob said having Kris closer to home will be great.

"Being out on the east coast, we would fly out once a year and during COVID I don't think we saw the kids for almost two years because we couldn't leave the country. It will be so much nicer seeing them in the summer and they can drive to Imperial. He could not have gotten a better place to get his first job."

Recalling the path Knoblauch took to reach his goal of being a head coach in the NHL, another Imperial native, netminder Connor Ingram who plays for Arizona, had a similar path to get to the professional level.

"We are really close to the Ingrams. Holly worked with (Connor's dad) Brent at the school for over 20 years and we know them pretty well," shared Bob. "Kris and Connor both kind of followed each others footsteps through the World Juniors, spending time in the AHL and finally getting their chance in the NHL. It is something special."

Wildcats face Cougars in provincial final

■ Daniel Bushman

A tremendous second half comeback created a nail-biting finish during this year's 2A six-man football provincial final as the Winston Wildcats travelled to Clavet to play the Cougars.

With a young and determined crew, the blue and gold representing Watrous advanced to the gold medal game following wins over Wakaw and Wynyard while Clavet defeated Kamsack and Rosetown in its playoff bracket. The pair of finalists who competed in the same league this year hit the field Saturday, Nov. 11 in the provincial gold medal game and despite a slow start by the Wildcats, the team responded in the second half.

Head coach of the Wildcats Barry Croshaw said between nerves and some bad footing the Cougars were able to take the opening kickoff for a major and jumped out to an early lead. Trying to regroup, the Wildcats were unable to generate any offence early on allowing Clavet to build a 28-0 lead.

Before the half, and after a few adjustments, the Wildcats replied, entering the third quarter down 28-8. With a halftime talk and feeling motivated, Watrous came clawing back as the game marched ahead.

"With some inspired play on offence and some key stops on defence, we were able to eventually come back to tie the game at 40," shared Croshaw. "They ended up scoring late and we were unable to get the ball back and lost by a final score of 46-40."

With a tremendous comeback in the second half, Croshaw said the coaching staff was very proud of the effort by the team all season, "but especially to fight back in the final against a very good team. We look forward to seeing what this group can accomplish in the future."

Croshaw also added how appreciative the team is of the support by those in Watrous and the surrounding communities during the season and playoffs. "There is no sufficient way to thank them enough. It has been everything from monetary donations, helping with extras to keeping our players warm and providing unwavering support on the sidelines. Our kids are very blessed to be part of such great places and to be associated with so many tremendous people."

►Advancing to the 2A six-man football provincial final against Clavet Nov. 11, the Winston Wildcats brought home a silver medal (pictured). Down 28-8 at the half, following a comeback in the third and fourth quarters, Watrous tied the Cougars at 40. Clavet would end up scoring late and the blue and gold were unable to get the ball back, losing by a close score of 46-40. photos by Kandi Holland

Pat Bryson • 306-259-4860

A meaningful Remembrance Day Service was held in the Young Community Hall Nov. 11 lead by the Young-Zelma Royal Canadian Legion Branch #358. Pastor Marilyn Stobbs emphasized remembering, acknowledging, honouring and praying in her message. "A veteran is someone who, at one point in their life, wrote a blank check made payable for an amount up to and including their life." Lunch and fellowship followed the service.

The Young community extends its sincere sympathy to the family of Tyler Gross, a treasured son, brother, uncle and friend, who passed away Nov. 3. His life was one of kindly deeds, a helping hand for others needs.

Is your sewing machine humming sewing clothes for a special girl and her dolly for Christmas? Does your basement resemble Santa's workshop creating toys for the children on your Christmas list? We know a sprinkling of love is going into each project.

The popular "Spirits of Christmas", a Young Wheatland Regional Library fundraiser, is returning this year. Once again, there are four different items to be won. Tickets are available at the Co-op Service Centre, the village office and at the library. Draw date is Dec. 19.

Nov. 13 was World Kindness Day. I hope your day was bright with promise because of all the wonderful kindnesses shown to you.

Enjoy your week!

Winterhawks take on Monarchs

■ Daniel Bushman

Following a home win to begin the season, the Watrous Winterhawks headed to Wynyard Nov. 15 to face the Monarchs in a game that would require overtime to determine the winner.

In the first period, Austin Lamotte got things started for the Winterhawks as he tallied from Gage Helm to make it 1-0 with 10:29 left in the frame. That lead did not last long as the Monarchs replied 14 seconds later when Cody Crone made it 1-1. Wynyard then scored another, this time 16 seconds after its first and nabbed a 2-1 first period advantage.

Heading into period two, Watrous managed to tie the game as Helm tallied for the visitors with 9:17 on the clock. Lamotte and Wyatt Johnson added the helpers on the marker. That was it for scoring through 40 minutes and teams took aim at the third period.

Looking to score the next goal, it would be the home crew who got it as Alex Forsberg scored with just over 14 minutes to play. Watrous tried to counter and with 1:50 remaining, Sam Klassen tied things up with Andrew Johnston assisting on the equalizer. Clubs were unable to register another goal through regulation so overtime was needed.

In the extra frame, Johnston would be the hero, scoring from Dylan Smith and Watrous would not only take the win but push its record to 2-0 on the season. Helm, Lamotte and Johnston each registered two points in the win while the team was assessed a total of eight penalties to Wynyard's four.

Watrous returns home to host Lanigan Nov. 21 and LeRoy Nov. 28.

► Following a home win against Drake (pictured), collected a 4-3 overtime win in Wynyard Nov. 15.

TWM AROUND THE WORLD
